NEWS RELEASE

Goldbrook Receives Environmental Baseline Report for Bravo and Belanger Claim blocks

Vancouver, British Columbia – Goldbrook Ventures Inc., (“Goldbrook” or the “Company”) is pleased to announce that it has received two environmental baseline reports for its Bravo and Belanger claim blocks from Roche Consulting Engineers. These claim blocks contain some of the more significant Ni-Cu-PGE targets that the Company is exploring as part of its important Raglan nickel belt project. The Raglan belt is one of the largest under developed, known sulphide-nickel mineralized belts in the world and includes the mining operations of Xstrata (Katinniq) as well as numerous undeveloped nickel-sulphide targets and showings within Goldbrook claim blocks.

During the 2007 exploration season Goldbrook contracted Roche Consulting Engineers of Sainte-Foy, Quebec, to perform baseline studies of water and sediment quality in lakes and streams of the Bravo and Belanger claim blocks. These claims are in the western portion of the Company’s extensive land position. Goldbrook considers it important to establish baseline environmental information before exploration intensifies in the region.

The environmental studies included the establishment of a year-round weather station, vegetation, fish, lake and stream sediment surveys as well as opportunistic observations of wildlife in the area. The resulting information will assist in future program planning and help inform local Inuit communities and administrative organizations on potential exploration and development activity impacts. Goldbrook is committed to continuing its exploration activities with the objective of carrying out mine developments in the region should the resources prove economic but combined with an environmental awareness and dedication to an informed and effective stewardship of the land and its resources.
